Whatever your marketing goals – generating leads, closing sales, educating current customers or positioning your company’s services and products – you won’t find a more effective semiconductor environmental, safety and health industry event than SESHA 2002.

SESHA 2002 delivers the influential audience you’re looking for. You won’t find a more qualified audience anywhere.

SESHA’s Annual Symposium & Exhibition is the semiconductor industry’s leading forum for advanced technology, attracting decision-makers who need to know where the industry is heading. SESHA 2002 will attract environmental managers, safety engineers, industrial hygienists, occupational health professionals, directors of EH&S, consultants, health & safety managers and more.

This symposium will be bigger and better than ever – the technical program sessions will continue to be focused on cutting edge industry challenges and the professional development courses will be topical and presented by industry leaders. Additionally, the industry supplier exhibition is on track to be the best ever; drawing on both the attractiveness of the Palm Springs as well as the unique concentration of semiconductor industry, environmental health and safety professionals on the West Coast.

Our Symposium draws over 600 attendees from the industry and, in some cases, individuals who wear all of those hats. The focus of the meeting will draw attendees from the semiconductor manufacturing, environmental and related high technology industries worldwide. Our attendees are the people within their companies with authority to select product and service suppliers.

SESHA is the world’s most respected and widely recognized organization dedicated to communication and education concerning environmental, health and safety (EH&S) issues relating to the electronics and high technology industries.

SESHA is an advocate for the integration and continuous improvement of all EH&S disciplines. We stimulate and communicate ideals and practices that enhance EH&S effectiveness in the high technology workplace and surrounding communities. SESHA openly discusses EH&S challenges and aggressively seeks to meet them.

We promote the evolution of new environmental, health, safety and hazards management technologies and practices to enhance the competence and status of our members within their professions.

Advertising Opportunities

Why is it that 90% of an exhibitor’s budget is spent on physical display, storage, shipping, and design/layout leaving only 10% for lead follow-up, advertising, and staffing? Most exhibitors are unsuccessful in maximizing the effectiveness of their presence at conferences.* SESHA offers solutions:

- The 2002 SESHA Annual Symposium Final Program. Handed out to a projected 800 conference attendees, the final program for the 24th SESHA Annual Symposium and Exhibition features detailed listings of exhibitors, exhibit hall layout, schedule and abstracts of presentations.

- The SESHA Journal. The SESHA Journal is the association journal for SESHA and is distributed to nearly 1000 members and subscribers quarterly.

SESHA members list these publications as one of the primary reasons they join the association. Target your market through ads in these respected and well read publications.

Still wondering if exhibiting at SESHA is the best investment you can make?

HERE’S WHAT SOME EXHIBITORS HAVE TO SAY:

"SESHA is the best gathering of environmental, health and safety professionals in our industry. Facility engineers and managers that have safety responsibilities are also regular attendees. The conference sessions are topical, well presented and well attended.

Few conferences or trade shows partner as well as SESHA does with exhibitors. The staff and board of directors work very hard to make both the conference and the exhibits as successful as possible."

"The SESHA show attracts a select group of decisionmakers from the semiconductor industry’s environmental, safety and hygiene profession. They are sincerely interested in visiting vendor exhibits to find out what’s new."
